

PROTECTING YOUR ARCHITECTURAL PRACTICE FROM PROVINCIAL OFFENCES ACT PROSECUTIONS

Pro-Demnity's inhouse Legal Counsel Matt Brown shares how your Pro-Demnity policy responds if you face quasi-criminal charges under the Provincial Offences Act.

AN ARCHITECT'S QUICK GUIDE TO EXAMINATIONS FOR DISCOVERY

Pro-Demnity's inhouse Legal Counsel Brenda Lockwood shares a brief guide to the discovery process for architects.

AVOIDING PERSONAL INJURY CLAIMS

Pro-Demnity shares proven risk management strategies to help you avoid personal injury claims against your architectural practice.

FIVE BENEFITS TO REPORTING A CLAIM

Reporting a claim to us is not only a contractual obligation under your policy, but also a smart move that can save you time, money, and hassle.

IS YOUR SITE REVIEW AS GOOD AS YOU THINK?

Will your next site review lead to a claim? Sal Knafo shares twelve tips to enhance your site review process and improve your risk management system.

WILL YOUR ARCHITECTURAL DOCUMENTS HELP (OR HINDER) YOUR DEFENSE?

Leslie Parker, Architectural Risk Advisor, shares her perspectives on how claims might be avoided through a better risk management system.

FOR WHOM THE LITIGATION TOLLS: EVERYTHING AN ARCHITECT NEEDS TO KNOW ABOUT TOLLING AGREEMENTS

A tolling agreement could be presented by anyone who believes they may have a right to sue the architect, including subconsultants, contractors, or even end users of a project.

2023 ANNUAL UPDATE: PROTECTING PRACTICES

Protecting Ontario's architectural practices is what Pro-Demnity does. It's rooted in our history and informs our future. It's why we matter to architects, and why architects count on us.

This year's annual update highlights how we rally to protect practices, and the protective measures we employ to enable architecture firms in their pursuit of designing a better world.

WHY ARCHITECTS SHOULD USE OAA CONTRACTS

There's just ONE contract to rule them all, and it's from the OAA. Here's a litigator's perspective on how OAA 600 and OAA 800 protect architects.

NAVIGATING RISK: WHAT PRACTICE LEADERS DO

A FRESH LOOK AT THE FACETS OF RISK IN ARCHITECTURAL PRACTICE AND HOW SIMPLE, METHODICAL APPROACHES HELP
LEADERS (RE-)EVALUATE RISK.

Risks inherently exist throughout the life of an architectural design project, rearing up intermittently throughout the beginning, middle and end, continuing years after and beyond the finished design or constructed architectural masterpiece. Design innovation is fueled and infused with both risks and rewards.

Navigating those risks is a continuous challenge for architectural practice leaders. There are the known risks, which they're actively anticipating, seeking to manage or mitigate them early on – like taking reasonable precautions in contracts or establishing quality assurance best practices at various project stages.

Then there are the unknown risks. The sudden and unforeseen ones.

In this whitepaper Pro-Demnity shares a modern perspective on risk, examining probability and impact while offering enlightened approaches that help architectural practice leaders make informed decisions about risks associated with practice.

DOWNLOAD THE FULL THOUGHT LEADERSHIP PDF

First published November 1, 2021