

Coming Soon: Pro-Demnity Risk Management Education Survey

Prospering in architectural practice means seizing opportunities while managing risks. Pro-Demnity is the architects' protective ally, supporting firms in the management of uncertainty as well as professional and insurance risk.

Pro-Demnity is conducting a survey to better understand the needs of architectural practices in managing uncertainty and risk. We want to learn what activities best support risk management in practice. What do firms do that increase the effectiveness of service delivery, reduce errors in documentation, and optimize resources? What risk management knowledge and skills gaps exist that, if filled, would strengthen client relationships, and increase business opportunities?

Participation in this survey will support the architectural profession and the business of practice. The survey will be released in the next week. Your participation is encouraged, valued, and appreciated.
