After 30 years of leadership, David Croft, Vice President Claims at Pro-Demnity Insurance Company, has announced his retirement from the company. David joined Pro-Demnity in 1989 (when it was operating as the OAA Indemnity Plan) after a robust architecture career spanning England, the Netherlands, Canada and the USA. Since then, he has led the development of our unique claims approach of Architects serving Architects, using his technical expertise, his business acumen and his no-nonsense common sense to ensure individual architects, the profession, and the general public have all been well cared for in real or alleged E&O situations.

David will remain in his current position until September 15, 2019, at which time he will shift to the role of Executive Claims Advisor. In this new role, he will assist in the transition to a new Claims leader for Pro-Demnity Insurance Company. David will also provide his extensive experience and knowledge as an Advisor to the new Claims lead.

David will continue in his role of Executive Claims Advisor until the end of 2020 in order to complete a full transition.

Recruiting for David's replacement will begin immediately.
